Jackson of Lynchburg, and Rufus son Page, who almost exactly answered the description given of Carrington, was arrested and held for the identification of the Burkeville authorities. He was started off very briskly, and will condischarged from jail to-day, the fact being established that he was not the man wanted. But strange developments were made in the case to-day. It was learned that Carrington arrived in town last Wednesday night, having tramped all the way from Burkeville; that he contracted pneumouia from exposure on the trip, and that he died at the house of one Jane Johnston on Monday, and on Tuesday the body was buried at the poorhouse. The identity of the dead man was fully established by the father, who bill to carry into effect the provisions of the get of the 2d of March 1887, in re-

ALEXANDRIA, VA., January 26.—Fuller particulars of Captain Minnigerode's sad suicide were unobtainable until to-day. It appears that he came down in the 5 o'clock train and went to his home, on Washington street adjoining Judge Stuart's. He repaired to the nursery and in the best of spirits, until the old co-lored nurse took a younger one to prepare it for bed, when he went and lay down and in sight of the child coolly placed a 32-calibre revolver to his right temple and without a word deliberately fired. The bullet went through his brain. The alarm was given and oon Dr. Powell was at the bedside of the unconscious and now dying man, who still grasped tightly the smoking weapon. Nothing could be done, and expired in two hours. He moved it is said his business recently dropped adjourned until to-and he became somewhat despondent.
